Mysteries and Miseries of Farc THE VICTIM OF A "BRACE" GAME.

THE VICTIM OF A "BRACE" GAMD.

From the Cincinnan Commercial.

A gambling den at 143 West Fourth street was entered yesterday by Detectives Hazen, Mitchell and Carey, who captured the gamblers and tools and introduced the gamblers and tools and introduced them to Hammond Street Station. The raid was made because a man had lost within a few dollars of $1,400 there, this week in three or four plays against a "brace."

On Tuesday the poor fellow dropped fire hundred and sixty dollars next to the box, on Wednesday seven hundred dollars, and on Thursday one hundred and thirty-six dollars. Yesterday afternoon when he gave his gold watch and chain at Hammond Street Station, as security for his appearance at the Police Court this morning, to give testimony against the alleged robbers then confined within the cells of said station, he had only one dollar and severation, he had only one dollar and severations out of ten plays at the fairest game of faro that was ever dealt from a "equitor" box. There are against them the percentage of "splits" on double cards and the insensibility of the box. This is supposing that fifty-two cards are furrly shuffled, without the dealer knowing their relative positions when he places them in the box, and fairly slipped out of the box, in twenty positions when he places them in the box, and fairly slipped out of the box, in twenty positions when he places them in the box, and fairly slipped out of the box, in twenty positions when he places them in the box, and fairly slipped out of the box, in twenty positions when he places them in the box games out of that little crevice under the top im of the German-silver parallelogram. Now, if this be the case with faro dealers themselves, who deal both fair and foul games, when they play against bank, how must it be with unsophisticated people the hind ganat astonishment, yesterday, when the box against which he had been the had been the had been the without the case of the port of the positions of the box in the fair and the first time of the car from some saloon and who play agains had as he bets, always, in small sums, so that the game may not become desperate, and who are bound to win tens where he loses hundred. If the people in the game can drive them off, they do so; but in many, cases they have to submit to being thus blackmailed.

robbery, meaner than that of the burglar, highwayman, pickpocket, or even snearbathef, who run some risks of personal suffering in their operations. To many who play against fare this explanation will render the swindle apparent. They can see why some games nearly always have the same "case keepers," and it is necessary only to tell them that the cards are sanded, so as to adhere, back to face, when the dealer wants to "take" an extra card in order to prevent a card, on which white, red and blue chips, or only whites, if the game be light, may be stacked, from winning. If the ordinary, uninitiated player will watch a game of this kind he will notice that the dealer telegraphs with a thumb, with an index finger, and with various taps and motions of the right hand, to the case keeper, informing him when to shove up two buttons, when to make a false entry. If the player will take the trouble to count the "turns" of a deal of this kind, he will find that there are only from fifteen to twenty, whereas, if the deal were honest, and only one card at a time, would make fifty cards, and which, added to the top or "soda" cards, at the losg of the deal, and the "hock" or button card, at the close of the deal, would make the rogular deck of fifty-two cards.

A person posted always has a fine field for a study in dropping in upon a brace game where even only a single victim of considerable ready cash is being plucked. The dealer sits behind the table with drawers to right and left of him and a check-rack at his right hand. In one of his drawers are money compartments containing a few ragged bills, ones, twos, and as meeting a few ragged bills, ones, twos, and as meeting and place where his follow robbers can garb it; he keeps it in his inside vest pocket, In another drawer is a slung shot, a bowe knie, a revolve, or a pair of Der-grab it; he keeps it in his inside vest, pooket, In another drawer is a slung slot, a bowie knife, a revolver, or a pair of Derringers—something of that kind for an emergency. The check rack contains, stacked up in even piles of twenty "chips" each, the red, white and blue ivory checks, that haven't been boupfu out by the loing player or players. The table in front of him is covered with green beize. A portion of it is occupied by the "epread," raised an inch and a half, containing the thirteen cards, neatly pasted in two rows on green cloth. The rows run the length of the table, the ace, the deuce, tray, four, five and six, in the row next the players, and the eight, mean and ten, jack, queen and king in the inside row. The seven spot corners both the six and the eight spots. A fresh deal begins, the cards having been shuffled, or "run through," and placed in the box, faces up, and showing as they appear (tor the top of the box is only a rim) one after another, and sown irist, before any are pulled, does not count in the game. It is called "soda"—why, is not known to anybody, so far as we have been able to learn. The next card, however, is the first loser, the third the first winner, the fourth the second loser, the fifth the second winner, and so on, alternately, to the end of the deal, twenty-five times if the deal be a lar. When it comes to the last "turn," and there only four cards left in the box, one on top and known, one at the bottom and two between, the players an attempt to "call" the turn. curried on a Grman bottoma and to German porce The war therefore be tween Prussa id France is a severe blow to the oil trale first because of the block ale of German ports b the French naval power and secondly, because or the expe sure of property on German vessels to se zure on the high seas it not confisca tion Our own country has no shipping to boast of but England could transport our oil if she remains neutral. France may, however, at any moment, declare oil contraband or war, and in an extremity that a blockade rightly interpreted will not and should not exclude the merchant vessels of a neutral power but, in time of war it is idle to expect those concessions which in a period of peace may be subscribed to in international treats and com pact. But allowing the blockade to ex clude our oil, and allowing the carrying trade in German vessels to be practically suspended, the Prussian marant can still be reached through Belgium, Holland Italy and Sw tzerland or even through the French ports. Admitting therefore that France shall observe, as one pledges her self to do, the treaty of Piris and allow our Government its privileges and immunities, there still remain the serious difficulties of a blockade, the risk of sez ure, if not condemnation, qualified how ever by a transportation in other foreign neutral bottoms and a consignment to neutral port in the first instance. These continuences and unit to nties must last as long as hostilitie acts, lor threatened last, and must operate, while they con t nue, to prevert a rullving of the Petroleum market to the firures it held and maintained when there was peace in Eu rope on land and sea.

Fraudulen: Tobacco Manufacture.

A c-reular le ca trom the Internal R v enue Office has been as ued, stating that to- some time evidence has been accumu lating of a consumt and increasing illegal trade in manufacturing tob cco in the West, larger through the instrument thty or pedlars and small manufacture s who it is eard sell tobac o ... pr ces which pre clude the idea of honest payment of all the tax due- &c

What will be ries of Prince Frederick Charles In answer to the question What will be your fate in this war with I rance the Prince replied. We can conquer her I i answer and we shall conquer her with extrainty it we know how to detach our selves in time of war from the routine of the drill ground and the demands of regulations. Already we have succeeded in overturning, the legions of the Empero- of the Gaul and what we have done with the help of God we can do again. If he continued the existing French army 1 as perhaps it is better and cert unly more a timerou within that which we subdued in 1818 1814 and 1815 we ought to find in our own the same advantages and so our cry shall be "the more enemies the greater honor."

The Berlin Correspondence prints the The Berlin Correspondence prints the text of the treaty which the Frerch Emeror officered to Court Bismarck. In its comment, the Correspondence says the Emperor waived all opposit on to German unification provided Prussin would abet the Trench acquisition of Luxembourg and the reduction of Belwium. The minutes of the treaty in Benedittis writing are pre erved, in the War Office at Berlin. Before he war of ISG6 between Prussin and Austrin Appeleon had offered to aid Prussin with 300 000 men with which to attack Austrin as an equivalent for the cession to France of the territory on the left bank of the Rhine.

WEDNESDAY, July 27th.

Esther Denison, a "fifteenth amendments to her conduct. Her crimes and misdemeanors were various, drunk, disorderly, noisy, obstreperous, and hailing from Parker's Landing. She was fined five dollars and costs, and unable to pay, was returned to the lock-up, but afterwards pardoned out on condition of leaving town. She departed saying:

The March with that when he drove him us fact as Flors Temple's record he should become the owner of a house and lot. Champin drove him in 10½ and received from Mr. Corning, a residence valued at $15,000. But Champin, when he boasted that he would beat them all, labored under the impression that Lady Thorne was played out. She had trotted meanly in 2:18½, the fastest on record save that inscribed on the Dexter banner. Palmer woo second money in this race, showing that Champlin was not very wide of his reckoning.

The Hornellsville races occur on the 5:h of August. Five thousand dollars is the amount of premiums, and a number of fast horses have entered for the races.

BUFFALO SUMMER TROTTITG MEETING The summer meeting of the Buffalo Driving Park association commences or able inducements: Six thousand dollars in two purses. First $2,000 for horses that have never beaten 2:34. We know of a number of good ones eligible for this place Second $4,000 for horses that have never beaten 2:27. This purse will attract a large number of horses next to, and fast a large number or horses next to, and test approaching the vast best and fastest of trotters. The opening day with such purses will no doubt be a great success. Think of it!—on the Second Day, twenty thousand dollars in one purse for horses that have never beaten 2:30! This old is years, but new to the turn, output of the stages who have not gone below the figures named. We predict that this purse will bring together the largest and finest field of horses ever seen in this country, Also, on the same day, $1,000 for horses that have never beaten $2.50. This is an excellent opportunity for green horses—and their name is legion.

On the Third Day three large purses are offered, viz: $4,000, $1,000 and $1,500. Look at the programme, and think of the host of famous trotters for these purses.

The Fourth Day's purses amount to $8,500—$7,000 for all nags, and $1,500 for double teams. By these purses the managers hope to secure the attendance of the fastest horses on the turf, and we confidentially expect to see the famous old mare "Lady Thorne," the splendid gaited "American Girl," the easy going "George Palmer," the bidies' favorite "Luoy," the slashing stallion "George Wilkes," and very possibly some others who are going very fast." The horse "Earry," the beautiful bay that attracted so much attention here last year, the little wonder "Idol," also here last year, "Billy Barr," "Danvers Boy," or "Genet," and the Chicago horse, "Silas Rich," are all doing wonders. But we do not undertake to name a tithe of the fast horses likely to be here. The belance of the $42,000 is so decided as to secure the competition of all classes and conditions of horses not before alluded to from 2;24 to 2:50. On this day also take place the double team races, which promise to be one of the great successes of the meeting. Double teams have achieved wonders this season, some haring tested of the control of the
